

There are many different styles of Bonsai that are being used at the present time. These styles include formal and upright, informal and upright, leaning, cascading and, windswept, on a rock and groupings. The most important identifier of a style is the growing angle of the tree in the container.